

Employment Law Training

Are your managers and HR team confident in dealing with employment law issues?

Employment law can be tricky for any business, large or small, but lots of problems can be avoided if you and your management team get the proper training.

Taylors' employment lawyers are specialists in this area and we're passionate about providing excellent training which is interactive, jargon free and bespoke to your organisation.

Whilst we are happy to provide bespoke training on any topic of your choice, examples of our more popular sessions include:

- Managing performance to achieve success
- Handling difficult conversations at work
- Sickness absence – prevention, management and cure
- Tackling disciplinary problems
- The TUPE toolkit – an employer's guide
- Discrimination – the do's and don'ts
- Redundancy – getting it right
- Dealing with grievances – the process and solutions

Our workshops are interactive and can be tailored to your specific requirements, delivering straightforward, no nonsense, goal focused training which is legally and commercially relevant to your business.

Here's what our delegates say:

“It was informative, fun and easy to understand. Excellent use of examples and the role plays were designed specifically for our work place.”

“Excellent knowledgeable trainers who delivered the course in an informal and safe environment which allowed us to openly discuss our concerns relating to specific issues.”

“A great balance of taught learning and practical examples; very informative and interesting.”

“The training truly added value to the business and also to my own personal development as a manager.”

The Taylors Employment Team

Contact Peter Byrne Head of Taylors
Employment Team

Peter Byrne

Employment Partner

peter.byrne@taylors.co.uk

07739 945189